Loading up his wheat for the winter, the farmer discovers that the bin is infested with rats. He chases them, but they scurry into his house. There the rodents ride riotously and poor Al can do naught to stop them. 9

Always happening along at the opportune moment, Slippery Slim Sam, the suave salesman, arrives at Al's house. Sam sells the farmer a dog, a real rat exterminator. Al put the pup into the cottage and up and down its' hall runs the dog with the rats in pursuit.

Finally the hound runs out of the house followed by the rats. He dives into a box, and traps the rats. While Al is thanking Slim Sam, the pup releases his captives and they chase Al, Sam and the dog.
